

Nora and her family had just moved into their new apartment. Nora watched her mother open the last box with a knife. “Mom, can we go explore a bit?” she asked.

Her mother looked around. “The place is a wreck, but we both need a break. Yes, let’s go!” she said. “But first I’ll write a note to your dad so he knows where we’ve gone.”

They walked along until they came to a skate park. Nora and her mother stopped and watched the skateboarders. There was a big ramp. They watched one skateboarder go down the ramp, up the other side, and then do a spin in the air.

